

School Notes, Nov. 12

November 12, 2013 6:00 am

UNION GROVE HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TO PRESENT ‘EXHIBIT THIS! THE MUSEUM OF COMEDIES’

UNION GROVE — The first production of the year “Exhibit This! The Museum of Comedies” by Luigi Jannuzzi will be presented at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday in the Performance Center at Union Grove High School, 3433 S. Colony Ave.

In addition to the normal evening performances, the students also will use a portion of this play as competition material at the Wisconsin High School Forensics Association One-Act Competition.

Imagine, if you will, that the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City has come to life. The play is a series of fast-paced comedic scenes and monologues based on 50+ real-life exhibits at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. Paintings, sculptures, antiquities and fertility gods will emerge from their molds and frames. In addition, attendees will see artists, guards, critics, lovers and curators come together for one very special and entertaining night at this museum.

In addition to the actual show, the pieces of art used will be up for silent auction each night. These are works that have been created by students in the Union Grove High School art department, and all proceeds for each painting will directly benefit Union Grove High School’s art department and International Thespian Society troupe 7878.

All tickets can be purchased at the door for $5.